

Literature Study on Teaching and Learning online

#moodlemooc

Ingrid Dethloff, 20.6.13

My Focus: How to inform yourself

- Online learning constantly changes - literature only lasts so long
- Where to look for up-to-date information?
- Formal learning or informal learning?

Some web links and input from a German perspective.

Formal Learning

- Studying at higher education institutions in Germany (master degree programmes, distance studies, international courses, certificate courses)

<http://www.hochschulkompass.de/en.html>

Some Examples

- <http://online-campus.net/>
 - <http://www.weiterbildung.uni-rostock.de/master-studiengaenge/medien-bildung/>
- Or taking courses at firms - there are many databases, for instance <http://www.iwwb.de/>

German E-Learning Portal I

- You want to use digital media in higher education? www.e-teaching.org (non commercial)
 - High quality Articles and material, Community, Specials, live Sessions (also hosted one of the first German MOOCs...)

German E-Learning-Portal II

- Information portal which is more business-orientated:

<http://www.checkpoint-elearning.de/>

Associations, Conferences, Trade Fairs

- Gesellschaft für Medien in der Wissenschaft e.V. <http://www.gmw-online.de/> with annual conference (s. <http://gmw2013.de/>)

- Some other conferences related to E-Learning:

LEARNTEC

German MoodleMoot

DeLFI

Some OER Projects

- <http://l3t.eu>

- <http://www.edutags.de/>

- <http://www.coer13.de/>

Tools & Trends

- Jane Hart: Top 100 Tools for Learning
<http://c4lpt.co.uk/top100tools/>
- Horizon Report Higher Education:
<http://www.nmc.org/publications/2013-horizon-report-higher-ed>

PLE

Create your own Personal Learning Environment to keep up-to-date and to connect

http://www.e-teaching.org/materialien/artikel/langtext_offen_lernen_panke_2011.pdf

Thank you for your attention

Ingrid Dethloff

<http://blog.idethloff.de>

www.twitter.com/idethloff